“ It's always difficult when you've known someone for a while and then you realize that you have nothing left in common but his memories. The time we spent talking to each other was so important to me because one thing that I take with me is you had a strong conviction that your laboratory numbers did not reflect on how you felt. You kept the faith and fought till the very end. This showed someone with exceptional character who undoubtedly believed in himself. Your witty sense of humor will always be remembered by many.

Rest easy Brother and have a safe journey!

A limb has fallen from the family tree. I keep hearing a voice that says "grieve not for me". Remember the best times, the laughter the prayers and our memorable conversations we had before my demise and this keeps me moving uncle. I regret missing your call on the 8th cos I didn't know what discussion you wanted to have with me. I know you have left but your memories are still with me especially in your voice saying "Ama Gifty my madam nono". Uncle I promise to continue your heritage. I know you have left us but I look at Akua and see you within her and this makes me feel that you are still with us 🙏. You will always be in my heart Wofa. Please be a guardian angel to help me take care of Joe, Akua and your mum. Wofa may your gentle soul rest in peace.

“ In his soft voice, Nana Boateng would say "Eeeheei me maame ..." followed by pleasantries. If we hadn't communicated for awhile he would say "Maame boni" you don't look for your son! This is the hallmark of a person with great sense of humor, and admiration. Nana Boateng was a loving and selfless person whose humility will never be forgotten. When hospitalized, we prayed to God for a miracle, but only God knows the best. My heart was broken however I am consoled by the fact that you are at a place now. A place where there are no more suffering of any sort. Nana your smiles and memories will live on forever. The man that loved the color gray sleep well. Sleep well my son and friend! May your soul rest in perfect peace.

“ I call Him a HERO, A great HERO I ever had..

My husband, Karikari Boateng, says what he wants to do and does it, no matter the difficulty or hindrance.

I remember he told me that, during the time of troopers, the time of the political unrest in Ghana, he suffered severe hardship and beatings but he stayed strong and never made enemies out of anyone. I knew he was strong, and could withstand anything. Knowing this, I hoped he will overcome these health battles but sadly, it got the best of him.

On the 24th of February, he asked I pray for his recovery, as he went for what we thought would be just another regular hospital visit. Saying "God bless Kay", in response I said "God will bless us all" as we said our goodbye, hoping to reconvene that evening. Sadly, the last time I'll heard his voice. I knew something was wrong when I didn't hear from him that evening, something just wasn't right. I prayed and cried all night to no avail, sadly, he had moved on to the next life.

He was a like no other, his kindness, friendship, and love for many will fuel his legacy on this earth, to be always remembered. You will be my Hero, and dearly missed, rest in peace and until we meet again.

*Your loving wife,
Mabel Kwateng*

“ From Children

Life has always been unfair to some of us a speech I always make. We lost our mum at an early stage of life. You took the mantle of being a father and a mother all these years. You always struggle to get us everything we need in life. You always make sacrifices to make your children happy. How I wish death was not part of us. I knew your health status all this while but I always prayed to our Maker for a miracle. It saddens my heart that I wasn't there with you when you were battling for life. I never knew that Tuesday 9th February was going to be the last day of hearing your voice Dad. I wish I never waved back at you when you waved saying "Akua bye-bye wai Nyame nka woho wati" with your nasal cannula on. Dad I never knew you were going to leave us this early. Dad you will forever be in our hearts. Dad since you have decided to be an angel all I ask from you is to be a guardian angel who will bring more blessings to us. Joe is saying he misses your long conversation with him all night. We love you Dad and we will always love you.
